The Sketches

- Merry old England? Even Shakespeare had to think of audience figures. Blood, swordfights and raving lunatics are extremely popular among the audience – so he includes them in his plays. His manager, Richard, is also very keen on keeping the Bard's plays up-to-date: how about integrating some interesting economic theories? Shakespeare is doubtful. Who has the better business sense?
- Ever thought that the annual financial report was boring? Stay tuned for MC Cash Flow and the Big EBIT.
- In recent times, businessmen have been often been compared to predatory animals, robbers and criminals. Who would have thought that it also works the other way around? A bunch of pirates is looking for new targeting strategies and contemplating offshoring.
- You are a successful businesswoman – unfortunately, your housekeeping competences are slightly less developed than your project management skills. What do you do?

“Business as (un)usual” is a co-production of The Provisional Players and the “(Business) English Theatre Project” at Reutlingen University. The show premiered on 7 June 2010 at the university campus in Reutlingen and will now be shown on 4 nights at the Brechtbautheater, Tübingen.
